CRP's staff and vocational trainees with disabilities organized and presented the show to raise awareness about disability issues, for the parents. A renowned actress and also a puppetry artist Nawshaba was present with her family, who also enjoyed the show. She used to play the role of Ikri Mikri in the famous programme Sisimpur. Physiotherapy Students of BHPI Participated in an International Ethics Project (IEP) Course:

The International Ethics Project (IEP) was initiated and developed by the effort of Prof. Michael Rowe in the Department of Physiotherapy at the University of the Western Cape, in Cape Town, South Africa. Under the IEP, online ethics course was developed in collaboration with colleagues from Sudan, Belgium, Switzerland and Bangladesh. The purpose of this online ethics course was to enhance student engagement in the topic of professional ethics while at the same time helping them to develop graduate attributes that are not discipline-specific (for example, digital literacy). The course was offered to a wide variety of physiotherapy students from different institutes around the world in an attempt to better understand collaborative learning in physiotherapy education (<https://internationalethicsproject.wordpress.com/>). The topics in the course were designed according to a contemporary physiotherapy curriculum so that students online learning capacity progresses alongside their understanding of the subject matter in Professional Ethics (<https://iepcourse.wordpress.com/topics/>). The Physiotherapy department in the Bangladesh Health Professions Institute (BHPI) gave permission to conduct the course for the final year students as a part of their ethics course in the final year curriculum. Physiotherapy students in the session 2012 – 2013 and 2013 – 2014 respectively actively participated in the cohorts and received a certificate after successfully completing the course.

The 4th year Physiotherapy students (Session: 2014-2015) of BHPI will also be participating in an online course on Professional Communication, to begin in January 2019, presented by Prof. Dirk Vissers, Faculty of Medicine and Health Sciences in the Department of Rehabilitation Sciences and Physiotherapy at the University of Antwerp in Belgium. Role-play will be used to make a video of an interview with a patient. The video will be made available online for physiotherapy students of different countries. They can give feedback on the video with a focus on international and intercultural differences in physiotherapists' communication with a patient.

Sakib's story

Thirteen year old Sakibul Islam is a playful and loving boy from Satkania, Chittagong. His father is a day laborer and supports the family of 4, including Sakib's younger brother. One evening, Sakib went out with his friend to pick some berries from a tall tree. While climbing, he lost his balance and fell onto his face. He immediately became unconscious. Bones in his arms were broken and he was bleeding profusely from his nose. He was rushed to a local government clinic for primary care. They were unable to stop his bleeding so sent him to the local government hospital and from there he was taken to Chittagong government hospital. Sakib remained unconscious for 11 days still bleeding from the wound. The Chittagong hospital doctors eventually managed to stop the bleeding but refused to keep him there as they had no other medical treatment to offer him. One of his neighbours advised his family to visit Savar CRP for help.

He was brought to CRP as a spinal cord injured patient on 24th of July 2018 and stayed here for four months. The doctors upon examination admitted him immediately and advised therapy on a daily basis. When he came, he was a child with a blank look, distraught and very depressed. He was given Physiotherapy, Occupational therapy and Counselling to gain not only his physical health, but his mental health as well.

Sakib is quite well now. His therapists say that he will never be able to gain muscle power and bladder sensation. He will remain wheelchair bound for the rest of his life. The sad, gloomy boy has now become a jolly and playful boy again. During his 4 month stay here, he not only won over the hearts of doctors and fellow patients, he also managed to make some friends. Sakib's family plan to place him in a school in his village and CRP's rehabilitation wing will track his progress.
